Applying for ethics approval. Informed consent in pediatric clinical trials. Clinical trials in children. However the Gillick Ruling does not specifically exclude any child as too young. This permanent requirement of the code has resulted in therapeutic orphanhood for many aggravations of the health status of this population. Will the consent of one parent alone suffice, especially if they live apart? The ethics principles that apply to research with adults – such as that of ensuring freely given fully informed consent, and the right to withdraw from Ethical Research with Children participation – apply equally to children, but there are four additional provisos specific to research involving children: The emergence of an ethical duty to disclose genetic research results: Unlicensed review may be performed by the REB, an ad hoc external expert or a separate scientific review committee.
