The ancient Sumerians in Mesopotamia have left evidence of dream interpretation dating back to at least BC. In one study in the paper, Americans were more likely to report that they would miss their flight if they dreamt of their plane crashing than if they thought of their plane crashing the night before flying while awake and that they would be as likely to miss their flight if they dreamt of their plane crashing the night before their flight as if there was an actual plane crash on the route they intended to. For example, Alexander, while waging war against the Tyrians, dreamt that a satyr was dancing on his shield.
